Understanding Prospect-Level Research Activity

Prospect-level research activity—knowing what your targets are doing and what they really care about—gives you a huge advantage in your outreach. You'll see immediate improvements in conversion rates all across the buyer's journey. Only TechTarget's Priority Engine™ can provide this level of accuracy and specificity into the immediate needs of your accounts, the individuals within them and the buying teams they're a part of.

Activity Matters: When prospects are in a buyer's journey, they're 7X¹ more likely to respond

- We uncover the buyer's journeys for you. We're the largest enterprise tech publisher on the web, so when an account is in market to buy, they opt-in with us for critical decision support information. We're constantly monitoring activity across 140+ hyper-specific technology websites and 10,000+ granular topics to identify the best prospects—the real opportunities—for your teams to pursue.
- We provide unmatched precision. We know what they're reading, what decision stage they're in, even how they line up to your specific value propositions. You'll know immediately whether to add them to a Marketing nurture stream or if Sales should take immediate action.

The four charts to the right illustrate the content consumption of prospects researching granular CyberSecurity and Team Collaboration topics – two examples from the hundreds of tech categories we cover for you. Understanding this detail, your teams will know how best to activate and what messaging to emphasize every time they plan a touch, a campaign or a cadence.

Develop breakthrough outreach

- With 20+ million opted-in enterprise tech members, TechTarget’s network captures more active demand in your market than anyone else.
- When you have real purchase intent data at the opt-in prospect level, your teams know how to develop better tactics and orchestrate them far more productively.
- By better personalizing outreach based on the expressed needs of each buying team member, you’ll create at least 2X² more opportunities – and close them faster.
